Bibliography 19

Introduction

The goal I set for this project is to list all of the books and authors mentioned throughout Ægypt, or The Solitudes, by chapter. A full bibliography for all items found is at the end of the document. If a chapter is missing below, then it did not have any books or authors mentioned within it. Books listed in bold are fictional works created by Crowley. The Authors Mentioned subsections list authors that were mentioned within a chapter but did not mention a particular book.

In most cases I tried to cite a work that would have been appropriate for the time frame of the story in which it is mentioned. In some cases, I have not been able to find a suitable edition and so cite a modern edition instead. Those will eventually be cleaned up to reflect either a copy of the work from the 16th century, one up to 1978, or one available to Crowley while he was writing.

This is probably the fourth or fifth version of this that I've done. The previous versions were for my the enjoyment of myself and a few others. This version I've tried to get as good as possible. I also made use of a BiBTeX file using the excellent Jabref application which I use in conjunction with TexMaker. (Earlier versions of this were entirely text or Markdown.)

I'm open to any ideas as to how this can be updated and expanded. For any corrections or comments the reader can email me directly at murfman@pm.me.

Special thanks goes to the guys within the #Books channel on The Miskatonic University Podcast Discord Server. You guys know who you are.

Ægypt Bibliography is an occasional blog regarding this project is available on Substack.

(This is still, and likely will remain, a work in progress.)

Preface Works

Author's Note

Books Mentioned:

- Hermetica [63]
- The Solitudes of Luis De Góngora [23]

Authors Mentioned:
Joseph Campbell, Elizabeth L. Eisenstein, Mircea Eliade, Peter French, Hans Jonas, Frank E. & Fritz P. Manuel, Giorgio di Santillana, Stephen Schoenbaum, Wayne Shumaker, Keith Thomas, Lynn Thorndike, D. P. Walker, Dame Francis Yates, John Mitchell, Katerine Maltwood, Robert Graves, Lois Rose, Richard Deacon, Walter Scott, and Luis de Góngora.

The Prologue on Earth

Books Mentioned:

- Bruno, Giordano. De monade, numero et figura. [15]

> "I'm not from here; I'm from someplace different from this. The road seemed longer than it ever did by day; at the bottom of the hill, the world was still dark, and dawn was far away."
> —John Crowley, "Ægypt", Prologue on Earth.

Vita

One

Books Mentioned:

- The Solitudes of Luis De Góngora[1] [23]

Authors Mentioned:
Peter Ramus.

> "...his first two practical wishes for health and wealth having been asked and granted, to use his third wish simply to wish that he might forget the whole thing had ever happened; his safety and ease magically assured, to forget he had ever known wishes could be granted, to be returned to his (present) state of ignorance that such irruptions of power into the world, power placed at his unwise disposal, were really truly possible at all."
> —John Crowley, "Ægypt", Prologue on Earth.

Two

Books Mentioned:

- Kraft, Fellowes. *Darkling Plain [41]
- Burnett, Frances Hodgson, and Sue Ullstein. The Secret Garden [18]

[1]The title is listed here as "Soledades of Luis Góngora" which is the Spanish name of the poem, but isn't the name of the version he is reading. Pierce also mentions that this is a "new translation that he was to review for a small quarterly" but I believe this is Crowley adjusting reality to fit the narrative, something that he does throughout.

- Norton, Mary. The Borrowers Abroad[2] [56]
- Kraft, Fellowes. *Under Saturn, A Novel of Wallenstein.[3] [44]
- Kraft, Fellowes. *Bitten Apples [38]

Three

Books Mentioned:

- The Solitudes of Luis De Góngora [23][4]
- Pastorals[5]

Authors Mentioned:
Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Luis de Góngora, and Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Four

Books Mentioned:

- Barr, Frank Walker. *Time's Body. [7]
- Barr, Frank Walker. *Mythos and Tyrannos. [6]
- Hunnis, William. Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soule for Sinne. [34]

[2]There is no novel by Norton titled The Borrowers Abroad. This may have been deliberate by Crowley, or an accident, since all of the books are named in a similar pattern (i.e., The Borrowers Afield, The Borrowers Afloat, The Borrowers Aloft, The Borrowers Avenged). More research could be done to see if this was a proposed title of another book in the series, or if this was a subtle way to shift the book away from the reality, or history in this case, that we experience as the reader.

[3]Seems to be based on the biography of Wallenstein: Watson, Francis. Wallenstein, Soldier Under Saturn. 1969.

[4]Crowley quotes Cunningham's translation of the First Solitude lines 94-96, 108-111, then 112-116. He switches to the original Spanish for pieces of lines 113-114, and 119-121.

[5]This is the answer that Pierce gives when asked "What's the book?" I'm almost 100% certain that Pierce is referring to The Solitudes of Luis Góngora here, but his answer leaves the possibility that he is reading a different pastoral book of poems. If I had to name something other than Góngora, then it would be Pastorals by Ambrose Pierce, 1748, but that is outside the time period for much of the works mentioned. To further solidify the choice of Pastorals being Góngora's Solitudes I would refer to the last sentence of Chapter three: "The owl, Athena's wisdom bird or obscene bird of night (these Gongorisms are catching, he thought), asked again its single question." I would think referencing the actual style later named for Góngora's writing would settle the debate... The debate I'm having with myself, that is.

- Shakespeare, William. Measure for Measure. [66]
- Unknown Volumes of Encyclopedia Britannica. 1939. [2][6]
- Malory, Thomas, and Sidney Lanier. The Boy's King Arthur: Being Sir Thomas Malory's History of King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table. [46]
- Kraft, Fellowes. *Bruno's Journey. [45]

Five

Books Mentioned:

- Virgil. Virgil's Eclogues. [77][7]
- Dante. Divine Comedy. [21]

Authors Mentioned:
Homer, Sophocles, Dante, Shakespeare, and Cervantes.

Six

Books Mentioned:

- Rose, Lois. *Steganography. [61]
- Bates, Lizzie. Stories of the Flowers. [9]
- Perlesvaus. The High History of the Holy Graal. [57]
- Sprat, Thomas. The History of the Royal Society of London, for the Improving of Natural Knowledge. [68]
- Frazer, James George. The Golden Bough: A Study in Magic and Religion. [29]
- Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth. The Golden Legend. [48]

[6] I am assuming the 1939 edition since Pierce mentions bringing several volumes of this fictitious version with him to Blackberry Jams.

[7] Line 6, "iam redit et Virgo, redeunt Saturnia regna," translated as "The virgin and the reign of Saturn come again". The following line is, "iam nova progenies caelo demittitur alto." translated as "now a new child is sent from heaven above." These lines predicted the coming of Christ, at least to medieval European readers who had just rediscovered Virgil, this is also, why Virgil was lauded as such a godly pagan and was the figure that escorted Dante through Hell and Purgatory in The Divine Comedy.

- Apuleius. The Golden Ass. [5]
- Hyginus. Poeticon Astronomicon. [35]
- Huizinga, J. The Waning of the Middle Ages: A Study of the Forms of Life, Thought and Art in France and The Netherlands in the XIVth and XVth Centuries. [33]
- Burgess, Thornton W. Old Mother West Wind. [17][8]
- "Miss Martha's History Book"[9]

Author's Mentioned:
Giambattista Vico, Grimm, Frobenius, George Santayana, Giorgio di Santillana, and Anthony Trollope.

Seven

Books Mentioned:

- Shakespeare, William. Shakespeare's King Henry VIII. [65]

Authors Mentioned:
Æneas.

[8]Mentioned by Crowley as "Old Mother Westwind"

[9]I'm assuming that this is a real unnamed history book belonging to Miss Martha, Pierce's uncle Sam's housekeeper.

Lucrum

One

Books Mentioned:

- Sidney, Phillip, Sir. The Lady of May. [58]
- Holinshed, Raphael. Holinshed's Chronicals: Richard II, 1398-1400, Henry IV and Henry V. [31]

- Talbot's Unnamed Enochian Manuscript.[10]

Authors Mentioned:
Gerardus Mercator, and Tycho Brahe.

[10]Crowley describes "Talbot's" aka Edward Kelley's manuscript as "…a manuscript on thick parchment, narrow and sewn up with heavy greased black thread. There was no cover or binding. The characters it was written in started immediately at the top of the first page without any heading, as though this were perhaps not the first page at all. Doctor Dee picked up the lamp and bent close over the page. Mr. Talbot turned the heavy worm-holed leaf. The second page was the same: a solid block of characters from top to bottom. It is in a cipher, the doctor said. I can read a cipher, if it hides a language that I know."

Four

Books Mentioned:

- Mead, G.R.S. Thrice-greatest Hermes. [52]
- Beeson, Charles H. "A History of Magic and Experimental Science During the First Thirteen Centuries of Our Era. Lynn Thorndyke." [10]

Eight

Books Mentioned:

- Lanier, Sidney and Wyeth, N. C., Illustrator. The Boy's King Arthur. Scribner's Illustrated Classics. Sir Thomas Malory's History of King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table. [46]
- Briggs, Austin. Flash Gordon. 1940-1948. [12]

Authors Mentioned:
Rabelais.

[12] "Hegel says somewhere that all great historic facts and personages recur twice. He forgot to add: "Once as tragedy, and again as farce." Caussidiere for Danton, Louis Blanc for Robespierre, the "Mountain" of 1848-51 for the "Mountain" of 1793-95, the Nephew for the Uncle. The identical caricature marks also the conditions under which the second edition of the eighteenth Brumaire is issued."

[13] Fictitious book whose name is apparently a play on a line from Francis Bacon's Of Vicissitude of Things, "Phaeton's car went but a day: and the three years drought in the time of Elias, was but particular, and left people alive." Para. 60. Phaeton's Car is apparently a fictional renaming of The Chariot of the Gods (Von Däniken, Erich. Chariots of the Gods?: Unsolved Mysteries of the Past. 1973.)

Fratres

Two

Books Mentioned:

- New York Times.
- Phaeton's Car.[13] [74]
- Niblick, Helen. *The Way's Far Turning [55]
- Kraft, Fellowes. *The Book of a Hundred Chapters [39]
- Dictionary of National Biography. [3]
- Benians, Ernest Alfred. The Cambridge Modern History. [11]
- Herbermann, Charles George. The Catholic Encyclopedia: An International Work of Reference on the Constitution, Doctrine, Discipline, and History of the Catholic Church. [30]
- Barr, Frank Walker. Unnamed collected works of histories. [8]
- Unnamed Bible.
- Stedman, Joseph F. My Sunday Missal: Using New Translation From New Testament and a Simplified Method of Following Mass With an Explanation Before Each Mass of Its Theme.[14] [69]
- Shakespeare, William. Unknown volumes of the Yale Shakespeare.
- Dee, John. Monas hieroglyphica. [25]
- Thorndike, Lynn. Four Unnamed Volumes.[15]

[14]Title given in Ægypt is Our Sunday Missal which could have been a mis-remembering of Crowley's part, or another slight alteration of the book's world from our own. Either way, this is the closest thing I can see Pierce having on his shelf.

[15]While the four volumes are not mentioned by name, we can make some guesses as to which they are since they are a part of the "secondary sources" mentioned for Pierce's novel. (i.e., The Place of Magic in the Intellectual History of Europe, The History of Medieval Europe, up to any four of the eight volumes of the History of Magic and Experimental Science (later in Daemonomania we learn Pierce has twelve volumes of this in fact), Check-list of Rotographs in the History of Natural and Occult Sciences, The Sphere of Sacrobosco and its Commentators, etc.).

- Sacrobosco, Earl. Unnamed Astronomy Textbook[16]. [62]
- Lewis, Charlton T. Lewis and Short Latin Dictionary. [47]
- Davidson, Gustav. A Dictionary of Angels: Incl. The Fallen Angels. [22][17]
- Unnamed Big Dictionary.
- Unnamed Big Picture Book of Clocks.[18]
- Unknown Volumes of Encyclopedia Britannica. [19]
- Unknown Big Shakespeare.
- Unknown Big Bible.
- Murphy, John and et. al. The Holy Bible : translated from the Latin Vulgate.... [20]

Authors Mentioned:
Norton, Norris, Nofzinger, Mackenzie, Macauley, Macdonald, Ross Lockbridge, Joseph Lincoln, Shellabarger, Costain, and Milton.

Three

Books Mentioned:

- Kraft, Fellowes. *Bruno's Journey[21] [45]
- —. Under Saturn. [44]

[16]This is a bit of tongue-in-cheek fun from Crowley. De Sphaera Mundi is a famous astronomical treatise from the 13th century written by Johannes de Sacrobosco.

[17]While this is not named outright and is simply referred to as "a dictionary of angels" it is by far the most famous published prior to the 1980s and is likely the one Crowley was referring to.

[18]There are a few possibilities here as to what this books could have been. I'm simply going to list the most likely candidates here: Thompson, David. "The Book of Clocks." 1971, Bruton, Eric. "Clocks and Watches." 1973, Tardy. "The Art of the Clockmaker." Early 1970s, Baillie, G. H. "The Lore of the Clock." 1973.

[19]The Encyclopedia Britannica became the first encyclopedia to undergo continual revisions in 1933. Crowley mentions "Several volumes of the 1939 edition" in this chapter, but there was not a specific edition published that year and as such it is impossible to easily tell what volumes of the 1933 14th revised edition were reprinted during 1939 specifically. Again this could be either intentional by Crowley subtly showing the differences between our world and the book's, or he simply could have chosen a date. Personally, I think it is likely the latter.

[20]The Douay-Rheims Bible, sometimes known simply as the Douai Bible was a translation from the Latin Vulgate completed by the English College, Douai in 1582 and 1609.

[21]This was Kraft's first book.

- —. Darkling Plain. [41]
- Fludd, Robert. Unnamed book.[22]

Authors Mentioned:
Marsilio Ficino, and Robert Fludd.

Four

Books Mentioned:

- "Death's dream kingdom". Unknown Poem.[23]
- Picatrix: The Goal of the Wise Man. [59]
- Kraft, Fellowes. *Unfinished Final Novel.

Five

Books Mentioned:

- Aquinas, Saint Thomas. The "Summa Theologica" of St. Thomas Aquinas. [70]
- Magus, Saint Albertus. Commentaries on The "Summa Theologica". [50]
- —. On Sleeping and Being Awake.
- —. Book of Secrets.
- de Sacrobosco, Johannes. Tractatus de Sphæra. [24]
- Cecco of Ascoli. Commentary on the Sphere. [19]
- Solomon. Shadows of Ideas.[24]
- Ficcino, Marsilo. De vita coelitis comparanda. [28]
- Horapollo. Hieroglyphica. [32]

[22]This can only mean Fludd's Utriusque Cosmi, however, there were no publications in English prior to the late 20th century. I believe it is instead referring to Paracelsus' The Hermetic and Alchemical Writings of Aureolus Philippus Theophrastus Bombast, but there will never be a way to tell for certain.)

[23]This must refer to T. S. Eliot's "The Hollow Men" from Poems, 1909–1925 (Faber & Faber Limited, 1925).

[24]I have no idea what this is referring to.

- Iambilichus. On the Mysteries of the Egyptians. [36]
- Apuleius. The Golden Ass. [5]
- al-Hakim, Ghāyat. Picatrix. [59]

Authors Mentioned:
Cicero, Quintilian, St. Albertus Magus, St. Thomas Aquinas, Aristotle, St. Jerome, St. Ambrose, Augustine of Hippo, Lactantias, and Horapollo.

Six

Books Mentioned:

- Unnamed Children's Book.[25]

Seven

Books Mentioned:

- Psalms 87 / Hebrew - English Bible. Mechon-Mamre. [53]
- Ficcino, Marsilio. Pimander. 1543. [27][26]

Authors Mentioned:
Cecco of Ascoli, Plato, Aristotle, Pythagoras, Plato, Epicurus, and Marsilio Ficino.

Eight

Books Mentioned:

- de Sacrobosco, Johannes. Tractatus de Sphæra. [24]

[25] I spent way too much time trying to track this book down. As best I can tell, there is no surviving children's "book about the family of mice who go traveling in a balloon" that was published in 1978 or before. However, Mary Norton's The Borrowers Aloft had a family of tiny Borrowers who escape a model village in a hot-air balloon. I'm wondering if this was where Crowley's initial idea came from, especially since he already invented a Borrowers book in Vita - Two.
